

What Customers say about Panamax® ....

Dear Panamax,

As you can imagine, any band utilizing electrical power for its shows needs to use some type of surge protection. In my band, Five A.M., we've learned to use surge protectors religiously. Often times, stages indoors and out are sketchy at best, with bad grounding and poor maintenance of the "back-line" (equipment the club provides). My band uses an assortment of Panamax Surge Protectors, ranging from a MAX® 6 for our low-cost gear, to a MAX® 1500 for the more expensive equipment.

I'd like to provide a surge protection story for your website testimonial section. The story goes something like this...

We were setting up our gear for a beautiful outdoor show at Ledson Winery yesterday. One of the 'smarter' guys from the band was plugging an extension cord into the power source near the stage--a big yellow box with four connects. Unbeknownst to us, two of them just happened to be 240v!!!

"Blam!!!" went the MAX® 1500 that was plugged into the extension cord. The guys told me that the MAX® 1500 was smoking. Of course, I was immediately concerned about the damage that may have been done to our musical equipment. But, upon closer observation, we realized all of our expensive pro-audio gear had been saved!!! The MAX® 1500 worked like a charm!!!

Thank you Panamax. I will do business with you anytime!!!

Jed Friesen (Drummer for Five A.M.)
Santa Rosa, CA